"The Business of Disease" Documentary

Opens up the pill bottles of Big Pharma and delves into how we are marketed to overlook our own ability to self-heal.

As for the health care of the future, "It's not simply about what's being done to us, but instead we must examine why we become victims and catalysts for the business of disease. We must examine what we can do to change this for ourselves instead of waiting on the system to fix things for us."

- Producer Sonia Barrett

On February 21, 2017 The Business of Disease Documentary (BOD) launched on TV and Internet platforms in both the US and Canada.

As political battles affect and infect our access and quality of health care in the U.S., this film examines how the psychological conditioning by Western Medicine is being made the prime directive for the administration of our health care system. BOD encourages us all to be unafraid to disengage and instead take responsibility for our bodies, minds and spirit.

Producer and author Sonia Barrett's interviewed guests present their insights into the current model of health care - a model known for treating symptoms rather than curing diseases. Through the insights of these neuroscientists, psychologists, nutritionists and others, she further provides the viewer an understanding of the relationship between the body, brain and mind and their influence on dis-ease. The effect of human emotions is also made evident as supported by scientific studies referenced in the film. Experts and scientists include Bruce Lipton PhD, Epigenetics, Amit Goswami PhD Theoretical Physicist and many more!

Although BOD makes clear the overwhelming influence of big pharma, focus is shifted in a way that educates viewers on their need to question and investigate other health options. With health care being a featured topic for both consumers and politicians, the film provides a clear picture that reinforces the knowledge of the body's ecosystem and its ability to heal itself under the right conditions.

These experts also bring into focus how we are conditioned and shaped as health care consumers beginning in early childhood and increasingly reinforced by current marketing trends.

The Business of Disease is now available on platforms which include Dish, Cox, Verizon, Shaw, MediaCom, Amazon Video, iTunes, Vimeo, Vudu, You Tube and more. Our objective is to spread the word about this very cutting edge film which can be seen as a game changer and perception shifter. It can aid in reducing a sense of powerlessness that is being experienced by many. We ask that you blog about it or have an interview with the producer Sonia Barrett to more deeply elaborate on the magnitude of this life-changing film. You may do so by phone (818) 899-1133 or by email info@timelinepublishinginc.com

ABOUT THE FILM

The Business of Disease is a seventy-four minute documentary exploring the hypnosis of marketing, belief systems and the body's ability to heal. The Business of Disease documentary exceeds the marketing of dis-ease but also examines the environmental and social programs from which our choices and experiences are shaped. It is an observation of how and why we have become catalysts for the business of disease. The film aims to provide options and insight into cutting edge possibilities. Science is integrated as a means of opening the door to available possibilities in better understanding the inner technology of spirit, mind and body. The documentary takes a "whole being" approach in dealing with dis-ease. This is a film that encourages us all to be unafraid to take responsibility for our bodies, our spirits and our minds.

"Plenty of truth"

The Hollywood Reporter

"Cast suspicion on Big Pharma"

LA Times

"Brisk, informative film"

Village Voice

"I think the film is very timely!"

Foster Gamble, Producer of the film "Thrive"

HOW IT ALL BEGAN

“It was the year 2010, the month of October and I found myself a bit concerned and perplexed by the repeated requests for breast cancer awareness donations. This was my experience each time I went to the supermarket not realizing that it was breast cancer awareness month. I then decided to write an article regarding what I viewed to be an overabundance of the marketing of dis-ease. I titled the article The Marketing of Breast Cancer the pink ribbon agenda. To my surprise the article went viral as many now felt a bit more courageous in voicing a similar opinion.

For me the daunting question was, in what way were we, as a society being imprinted by this “pink ribbon” code and what did it all mean. How was this being interpreted by the brain and the mind and what were the long terms implications not just to the individual but to a society. “
